

EDU 2013 : TEACHING DIVERSITY

Teaching Diversity is a course designed to introduce both Mainstream, ESL and WL teachers to issues which concern them when working with limited English-speaking students (LEPs) in grades preK-6. In this course students will focus on cultural issues and awareness in the first portion of the course, and then in the second half they will focus on practical applications of this knowledge by developing and sharing specific classroom activities designed for ESOL. A basic inventory of topics is found here although some topics may be augmented by further materials as students work through the course.
